

The World Economic Forum is an independent international organization committed to improving the state of the world by engaging leaders in partnerships to shape global, regional and industry agendas.

Incorporated as a foundation in 1971, and based in Geneva, Switzerland, the World Economic Forum is impartial and not-for-profit; it is tied to no political, partisan or national interests.

We are now searching for a

RESEARCH ANALYST GLOBAL AGENDA COUNCILS

You will help to develop and manage Global Agenda Councils. In particular, you will collect information about the leading experts in our business and industry portfolio and other pressing issues. You will conduct research using the World Economic Forum's own databases and the Internet. You will also prepare, update and generate reports from the Forum's database.

You have a university degree in international relations, public policy, economics, journalism or a related field, and a minimum of one year of professional experience. You possess excellent computer skills and are proficient with Microsoft Excel. You are fluent in English with excellent writing skills and proficient in managing and organizing large datasets and analysing data and results. You are able to make compelling visual presentations. You are attentive to detail and are able to work under pressure and against tight deadlines.

If you are a flexible team player with excellent communication and interpersonal relationship skills, willing to work in a highly demanding environment, please apply through our website:

www.weforum.org/careers

This position is open to Swiss and EU nationals, as well as holders of a valid Swiss working permit.